COUNCILLORS START MAPPING OUT DIRECTION FOR CEO RECRUITMENT

Strathbogie Shire Councillors have recently engaged in a workshop with recruitment agency, Omera Partners to discuss attributes and qualities they'd like to see in the next Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of Strathbogie Shire Council, as they start the recruitment process.

Strathbogie Shire Mayor Amanda McClaren said the group had a very productive workshop.

"It was a great opportunity for Councillors to sit down and have an open discussion about the qualities and attributes we'd like to see in our next CEO and what is required to continue to drive this Council towards achieving the objectives we have set in our Council Plan," Mayor McClaren said.

"The workshop has allowed us to have some very valuable discussions with Omera Partners, develop a shared vision going forward, and provide Omera Partners with the direction they need to start drafting a profile for this position."

Mayor McClaren said she encourages the community to provide their thoughts and feedback about the direction they'd like to see Councillors take with the recruitment of the next CEO.

"We value community feedback and ask that you to contact your relevant Ward Councillor, either by phone or email, if you'd like to provide your thoughts," Mayor McClaren said.

If you're interested in applying for the role, you cannot have any conversations with Councillors about this, but you can contact Omera Partners to discuss the position.

Once the position profile, referred to as the assignment specification, is finalised it will be made available to the public when the position is advertised.

Strathbogie Shire Councillors have selected Omera Partners to assist with the recruitment of the CEO position at the expiry of Mr Steve Crawcour's contract in November 2019.

Strathbogie Shire Council CEO, Steve Crawcour has announced he will not be reapplying for his position at the conclusion of his contract in November 2019.

Cr McClaren said Council is committed to finding a candidate who is the best possible fit for the Strathbogie Shire to continue to build on what the organisation has achieved to date.

Anyone interested in applying for the position can contact Omera Partners for more information.
